Channel 13 has been broadcasting from a station near Harbor Boulevard and Reed Avenue for over 15 years. But after CBS (owner of Channel 31) bought up 13's parent company about four years ago, West Sacramento has become home to Channel 31 as well.

"It's kind of neat to have two pretty powerful stations in West Sacramento," said Chris Burrous, a West Sacramento resident and TV personality on the airwaves at both stations.

Burrous is co-anchor of "Good Day Sacramento," a chatty morning program on Channel 31. Early this month, he and the rest of the "Good Day" staff were excited to be broadcasting from a redesigned set, meant to better evoke the Sacramento region.

"Most network sets are kind of generic, and you don't actually know where they are by looking at them," he told the News-Ledger. "We wanted something that references Sacramento and West Sacramento. I like having the Tower Bridge (in the set design), the 'brick' look and the view of downtown Sacramento."

That view, of course, is but a projection behind the anchors – the actual studio is surrounded by oak-studded property and nearby West Sacramento streets.

The show gives a nod to West Sacramento in other subtle ways.

"We do little things that are kind of fun," said Burrous. "When we want to show how windy it is, we show the flags at IKEA. When we talk about gas prices, we zoom in at the Arco on Reed Avenue."

The new set also gives the show a chance to have a small "live" studio audience.

"We've never really been able to do that before," said Burrous. "We can have about 8 or 10 people in little café seats. Although we did also have a large group of kids in for Sesame Street recently, and that worked out okay because they didn't mind sitting on the floor."

The new set is designed to be a welcoming, comfortable place for viewers to visit from their TVs at home every morning.

"There was a goal to make it look a bit like the loft in 'Friends,'" he explained. The show's hosts – who genuinely like each other – create a "family" feeling at "Good Day Sacramento." This means that viewers often feel comfortable with the TV hosts. Very comfortable.

"When we shop at Raley's or wherever, no one comes up to me and says 'Hello, Mr. Burrous.' It's 'Hey Chris! Check this out, do you want to see my scar?' or something. My wife is more of a traditional sort of news anchor herself, and this cracks her up."

The couple is expecting their first child in the coming weeks (his pregnant wife often craves the chorizo at Carol's Restaurant, Burrous says).

As a "Good Day" anchor, his daily routine starts pretty early.

"I wake up at 2:30 in the morning and I get to the studio by 4 a.m. We do the show from 4:30 to 10 a.m., and I do the noon news for Channel 13. I'm off by 12:30."

It's pretty much a dream job for Burrous. The 34-year old grew up on a family orchard near Modesto and majored in broadcast journalism at Chapman University.

"I grew up watching Stan Atkinson and so on. I've always wanted to work in television in this market. I've been doing this since I was 16, working at a station in San Jose."

He's been living in West Sacramento for about a year and a half – and has been bullish in promoting the city to his coworkers.

"It's been fun to encourage others at the station to move here," he said. "I think we're up to about nine employees in the news department that now live in West Sacramento."

School district looks at newer, deeper budget cuts

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Washington Unified School District is headed for a new round of budget cuts, and these will go deeper than the $750,000 in annual cuts approved in February.

Staff asked the district's trustees last Thursday to cut either $1.15 million or $1.45 million per year over the next few years, depending on whether they wished to plan for the state's budget woes to last into 2013, or merely 2012.

The board opted to make the deeper cuts. Most of the trustees agreed with their colleague Sandra Vargas, who said:

"The state's problems have become our problems. . . It's probably more prudent to do the 2013 average, and then scale back (the cuts) if we have to."

Board member Matt Stegman dissented, hoping the board would aim for the lower mark.

"I don't want to cut and make it more painful than it needs to be," he said.

Scott Lantsberger, Assistant Superintendent of Business Services, told the board that the cuts were needed based on staff's "worst case scenario" analysis of the next state budget. California legislators, facing a $24 billion shortfall, are still working on their own budget – but whatever it is, it's sure to bring major cuts to the state's schools.

It was time to factor in the latest information from the capital and "reset the target," said Lantsberger.

Board member Teresa Blackmer suggested talking to the unions for the district's teachers and staff members about making voluntary concessions to save money.

"I'd be very curious to see what their reaction might be, how they could help us out," said Blackmer, herself a retired district staffer.

Fellow trustee David Westin asked that WUSD administrators "share the pain."

"To say this is not going to affect student achievement is not correct," said Westin. "The goal of a board of education is to minimize those cuts with the skill of a surgeon. If we're asking for any concessions from the unions, I would like to see that applied across the board as well to the administration."

Lantsberger reported that WUSD administrators have agreed to accept three unpaid/nonworking "furlough days" per year to save the district money.

School staff plans to continue adopting its currently-proposed budget, and then bring a list of proposed budget cuts to the school board as a future modification to that budget.

Homicide is suspected —

West Sacramento police are investigating a possible homicide at a Maple Street house.

The body of a 44-year old woman was reported by a male acquaintance at about 4:20 p.m. on Saturday at the 400-block of Maple Street.

West Sacramento police said she showed signs of "blunt force trauma to the head" from an "unknown" object. The case is being investigated as a homicide.

Robert Labrash, Chief Deputy Coroner for Yolo County, told the News-Ledger that the woman has been identified as Monica Elice Turknett.

He said an autopsy was performed on Monday, but the cause of death is still pending.

RYAN WALSTAD of the West Sacramento Little League minor league team "River Cats" takes a home run swing on Thursday. His team was playing the "Bats" for the division championships. Was his home run enough to help the "River Cats" to a win? See page 3.

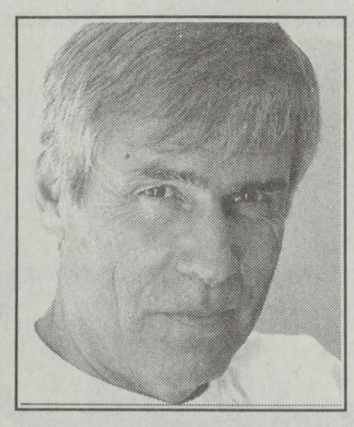
How you know for sure that you're old

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Awhile back I wrote a column about how a person can know if he or she is finally getting old, and if I remember right, here are a few of the signs:

Dinner and a movie is the whole date instead of just the beginning of one; You hear your favorite songs on an elevator or at the grocery store; You watch the weather channel endlessly; You can no longer stay up until 1 am no matter how hard you try; A $4 bottle of wine is no longer considered "pretty good stuff"; You don't know what time Taco Bell closes anymore; And having sex on a twin bed is simply out of the question.

Well, I am now here to tell you that there is actually a truly definitive way to come to the realization that you are definitely (no question about it) old – the United States Social Security Administration sends you a letter and pamphlet notifying you that you are now officially qualified to retire.

Now, before all of you out there in News-Ledger land get too giddy about the possibility that I will soon be retiring and that you won't have to read this silly little column anymore, it turns out that actually retiring at my age doesn't make a whole lot of sense – financially speaking. It does, however, shock the life out of you when you get a phone call at work from one of your kids saying that the mail at home has just arrived and that there's a big letter for you from Social Security.

"Now why would they be sending me anything?" I asked with interest.

"Because you're old?" came the reply from my youngest son. "Want me to open it and tell you what it says?"

"Sure."

"It says you're old!"

Later that night I did sit down with my Social Security letter and pamphlet and it was quite an interesting experience indeed. It had all kinds of suggestions on "how to build a secure future" and also a lot of basic information that was pretty much news to me. For instance, did you know that the typical 65-year old today will live to the age of 83? Or that one in four 65-year olds will live to the age of 90? Or that one in ten 65-year olds will live to be 95?

"I think the whole key to this social security thing is living to be 65," I said to my wife, who was seated next to me. "If you can somehow make it that far, then you are pretty much home free."

"Well," she said with a smile, "then you don't really have all that much longer to go."

"And it sounds like they're doing everything they can to keep people from retiring early, before they are at full retirement age, which in my case appears to be 66."

"So, what are you going to do?"

"Well," I said, "the way things have been going lately in this country, I think I'm mostly going to do a lot of praying that the government doesn't go broke before I turn 66."

In reality (outside of learning what you're entitled to and when), the most interesting part of everything the Social Security Administration sent me was the section entitled "Your Earnings Record". There, going all the way back to 1963, was a list of every penny I had made over the years. And the most enjoyable aspect of that wasn't seeing the actual dollar amounts, but rather how they related to the year in which they were recorded. For instance, it said that in 1963 I had earned the giant sum of $332. Now what job could that have been for, I asked myself, only to remember that was the year I was a part-time employee for the Bagdazian family pharmacy in West Sacramento. And since I was only a junior in high school back then, the best part of the job had nothing to do with how much I got paid — it was getting to drive all over town on weekends in the little company truck delivering medical prescriptions.

So, as I went through each of the years, the dollar amounts written down next to them began to bring back all kinds of memories of long ago jobs, when making $1.25 an hour was a pretty big deal. And I really smiled when I was saw that in 1969 and 1970, when I was busy dodging bullets in Vietnam, my government had paid me almost $9,000 and taxed me appropriately for Social Security and Medicare, apparently quite confident that I would make it home in one piece.

"Hey, Steve," I informed the editor of the News-Ledger the day after I got my packet from Social Security, "did you know that I am now officially qualified to retire?"

"Really?" he asked, not particularly concerned. "But if you retired, what would you do?"

"Well," I said, "I was thinking that I would probably just come over here to the office now and then, hang out with you for awhile, and not do much of anything."

"But that's what you already do!"

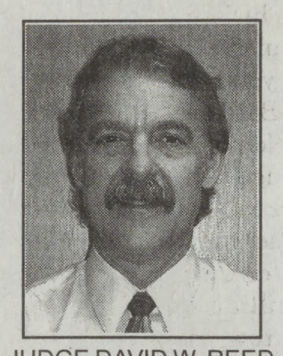
Governor Schwarzenegger announced on Thursday the appointment of David W. Reed to a judgeship in the Yolo Superior Court. This appointment fills the vacancy created by the retirement of Judge W. Arvid Johnson.

David Reed, 53, has served as a referee for the Yolo Superior Court since November, 2006. Initially he was assigned to juvenile and adult traffic court and also heard unlawful detainer trials and small claims cases. In January 2009 Reed was assigned full time to the family law department hearing divorces, domestic violence restraining orders, guardianships and adoptions.

Reed earned his law degree from McGeorge School of Law in 1983, after graduating from the University of Illinois in 1978 with a degree in civil engineering. Reed opened his own law practice in Woodland and was a sole practitioner from 1983 to 2006. He began his career representing clients in many case types, including criminal defense, family law, personal injury claims, bankruptcies, wills and trusts, and landlord/tenant cases. Over the years his emphasis increased toward criminal defense. In fact, in addition to his private practice, Reed was a member of the Yolo County conflict attorney panel for over 15 years. He tried numerous cases before juries including many serious and violent felonies.



JUDGE DAVID W. REED

A resident of Davis since 1979, Reed is married to attorney Sheryl Cambron and has three children ages 18, 20 and 22.

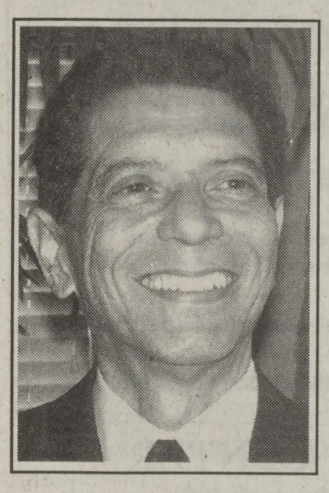
SPORTS INSIDER



By Richard Novoa

The NBA season finally comes to a close with Kobe Bryant leading the Los Angeles Lakers to their 15th franchise title with a convincing 4-1 series victory over the Orlando Magic. Kobe, who averaged over 32.4 points, 6 rebounds, 7 assists, was brilliant against the Magic-less defenders to handle and was a shoe in for the Finals MVP.

Kobe Bryant, who was quoted after winning Game One "I want this real bad", proved that his leadership skills were just as important as his shooting eye. Kobe was a pleasure to watch in leading a young Lakers team to the NBA title.

Now the big question in Los Angeles is who is going to pay for the Championship parade? The City of Los Angeles budget is dire straits and with a $1 million dollar price tag to throw the Lakers a victory parades the City is trying to get the NBA to foot the bill. At press time the NBA said they would chip in some money to cover the rental of the Los Angeles Coliseum for the victory rally.

Kings Korner

The Sacramento Kings finally pulled the trigger and hired a new head coach! The Maloofs signed Paul Westphal to be their fourth new coach in just over three years. Westphal agreed to a two-year deal worth a little more than $3 million, with an option for a third year at $2 million.

Westphal, a longtime NBA player and coach, went 267-159 during parts of seven seasons leading the Phoenix Suns and Seattle SuperSonics. He replaces interim coach Kenny Natt after the Kings finished 17-65, the worst record in the NBA and in franchise history.

The Kings fired Eric Musselman in 2007 after one tumultuous season, and ex-Kings player Reggie Theus barely made it into his second campaign before being fired last December. Westphal first assignment is to work with GM Geoff Petrie to evaluate some basketball talent in the nine days remaining before the NBA draft on June 25th.

The Kings have the 4th overall pick along with two other first round selections. Rumors have the Kings trying to package a few players and some picks for an established point guard. Boston's flashy Rajon Rondo name has been tossed around but the Celtics want the Kings to throw in another one of their top picks.

Korner Kicks

The United States National Soccer team is playing in South Africa preparing for next year's World Cup in South Africa. The U.S. brought most of its top players to this eight-nation tournament featuring South Africa, Iraq, Spain, and New Zealand in Group A with Brazil, Italy and Egypt joining the USA in Group B.

The United States, which qualified for this tournament by winning the 2007 CONCACAF Gold Cup, lost to Italy 3-1 on Monday. The Red, White and Blue play South American champion Brazil on Thursday (ESPN 6:55a.m.) and closes the first round against African champion Egypt on Sunday (ESPN 11:25 a.m.). The top two teams in each group advance to the semifinals.

Diamond Notes

Don't look now, but the San Francisco Giants (34-29) are quietly sneaking up on the baseball world and actually have the fourth best record in the National League. The Giants trail the Dodgers by 7 ½ games in the West but if the playoffs started tomorrow the Giants would be invited to the party.

The Giants are starting to play outfielder Andres Torres in place of Fred Lewis and the youngster is providing that missing pop in the line-up and is batting .324 with a couple of towering home runs. I still think the G-Men will be making a big trade before the All-Star break to make a second half of the season push for the playoffs.

The A's (27-35) on the other hand are at the bottom of the American League standings with the worst record in the League. The Eric Chavez saga continues with season ending back surgery for the former All-Star third baseman. Chavez, who is due $12 million in 2010, the final season of his $66 million - six year deal with Oakland, should retire but the A's will probably have to buy out his last year.

The Giants, who swept the A's last weekend to capture the "Battle of the Bay" trophy, are home this week against the Angels and Rangers while the A's continue their road trip down South to Dodger town and to Petco Park in San Diego.

River Cats

The A's sent Mark Ellis back down to West Sacramento to begin his rehab assignment with the River Cats. Ellis has been bothered all season by nagging injuries but this time it's a strained left calf muscle (60 days on the DL) that has him playing this week for the Gatos.

The Cats also added pitcher Steven Sharpe (Class A Stockton) to their roster as they visit Fresno this week. The Cats will return to West Sacramento on Thursday to host a four game series against the Salt Lake City Bees followed by another four game series against Colorado Springs.

Enjoy your day – see ya next week!

Touting locally-made wines

The month of June launches a promotional campaign for Yolo County wines, conducted by the Yolo Agricultural Marketing Initiative. In recognition of this effort, today the Yolo County Board of Supervisors presented a resolution to representatives from the county's wine appellations declaring June as Yolo Wine Month.

"The Yolo County Board of Supervisors envisions the county as a world-renowned destination for food and wine tourism, in which the wine industry will play a major economic role," said Yolo County Board of Supervisors Chair Mike McGowan. "We are extremely proud of our agricultural heritage, and what's yet to come, especially in the wine industry."

The Yolo Wine Month campaign will feature Yolo County's wines at various restaurants in the greater Sacramento area including Grange Restaurant and Bar, Aioli Bodega Restaurant and Mulvaney's Building and Loan, as well as restaurants throughout Yolo County. Beyond Yolo County wines in local restaurants, special events are also being held throughout the region. A Yolo County wine and food celebration dinner is being held at Alice Waters' famed Chez Panisse in Berkeley, Osteria Fasulo in Davis is having a winemaker dinner with Carvalho Family Wines and Putah Creek Café in Winters is featuring a dinner of Yolo County wines and wood-fired artisan pizzas. For more information on these events visit: www.atasteofyolo.com.

Yolo County has diverse and distinct viticultural regions, including five American Viticultural Areas (AVAs), with each region possessing unique climate, soil and watershed characteristics which produce wines to serve with anything from oysters to rib eye steak to chocolate cake, and everything in between. These AVA's include Merritt Island, Clarksburg, Capay Valley, Dunnigan Hills and Yolo County and provide for 20 different wineries with nine of them having tasting rooms such as Bogle Winery and the Sugar Mill in Clarksburg, Rominger West in Davis and Berryessa Gap in Winters.

Yolo County is also home to the world renowned UC Davis Department of Viticulture and Enology.

Tomorrow, Yolo County wine industry representatives will meet at the Robert Mondavi Institute for Wine and Food Science at UC Davis to explore the formation of an industry association. This gathering is sponsored by the Yolo County Agricultural Marketing Initiative and co-hosted by the Yolo County Farm Bureau, University of California Cooperative Extension Yolo County and Yolo County's economic development program.

The history of Yolo County as a viticultural region dates back to the 1880s when the industry was centered around the city of Woodland. Today, wine grapes are Yolo County's number three crop.

New group focuses on landowners' rights

A group of county property owners has founded the new "Yolo County Landowners Association."

Frank Sieferman, Sr., serves as president of the group.

A press release said that the organization has formed out of broad opposition to a groundwater ordinance and water agency proposed by the county board of supervisors. The proposals threaten water and property rights, said the group.

The mission of the YCLA: "To be dedicated to preserving the quality of life that Yolo County provides for all its citizens through protecting landowner property rights, monitoring the government process and taking action, when necessary, to safeguard those rights for future generations."

Yvonne LeMaitre is the YCLA's first vice president.

City: fireworks are illegal

From the City of West Sacramento

The 4th of July is just around the corner. The West Sacramento Police Department would like to take this opportunity to remind the community that ALL fireworks, including "Safe and Sane", are illegal to possess, discharge, sell or manufacture within the City of West Sacramento per Section 8.12.010 of the West Sacramento Municipal Code. A violation of this code section is a misdemeanor and violators can be either issued a citation or arrested. Possession of "Dangerous Fireworks", those not approved as "Safe and Sane" by the California State Fire Marshal's Office, also constitute a violation of the California Penal Code and the Health and Safety Code. Some dangerous fireworks are considered by state law as an explosive or destructive device, and are a felony violation.

The West Sacramento Police Department will have officers assigned to fireworks enforcement on the 4th of July. Among the calls received by the city fire department last week was the report of an electrocuted child.

Firefighters responded to a call regarding the 10-year old boy last Wednesday and found power lines down. The child had suffered a "major electrocution injury" from coming into contact with 120 volt wires.

$25,000 donation for teens

The Collings Teen Center announced last week that Sierra Health Foundation, a private philanthropy focusing on health and quality of life for Northern Californians, has awarded a $25,000 grant to support the teen center's programming for youth in West Sacramento.

The gift was Sierra Health's second significant commitment to the teen center in a matter of months. Earlier in 2009, the innovative regional grant-maker awarded $25,000 specifically to help underwrite CTC's Late Lunch On the House program, which provides a free, hot meal to local high-schoolers every schoolday afternoon. Late Lunch served more than 14,000 free meals during the 2008-09 academic year.

Sierra Health's most recent gift is designed to support the overall programming at the teen center. That programming includes academic, recreational, job-skills, leadership, and other empowerment programs throughout the school year.

"Sierra Health Foundation is proud to partner with the Collings Teen Center in support of the important work it does to improve health and well-being of young people in West Sacramento," said Chet Hewitt, the Foundation's president and CEO.

For John Jordan, the teen center's executive director, the latest Sierra Health grant is a welcome catalyst towards new programming for the 2009-10 school year.

"Times are tough for all nonprofits right now," Jordan said, "but the teen center has survived and thrived primarily because of the passion of genuine partners like Sierra Health. They just keep stepping up for us. And let me tell you: there won't be a dollar of that money wasted. We have a lot of kids to serve."

LETTERS from p. 7

Prop 13 is constitutional. By the way, Prop 13 was all about creating a new tax system that insured the taxpayer would not be surprised by rising tax bills – taxpayers in 1978 had decided that it is unfair to be subjected to higher taxes simply because of higher purchase prices of surrounding properties – not to be controlled by an inflated value, representing unrealized paper gains. Taxpayers had no control in the 70's and were getting fleeced – people were taxed out of their homes. Yes, even if Prop 13 were repealed, we would be in an even bigger crisis soon enough because the mentality of our state legislature is spend, spend, spend with no oversight in sight.

California's politicians need to be disciplined and that's what the voters did recently, the answer was no! Does it hurt? Yes. Do we need to hold our politicians accountable? Yes. Have we made out point? You better believe we made our point. Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord [Psalm 33:12]. We are still a democratic God blessing/honoring nation! Our votes still count!

As to Mr. Lowell's references to individuals paying their fair share of taxes, that should begin with our senators and congressmen and congresswomen who have hundreds of millions in American dollars invested in offshore accounts for the express purpose of evading taxes; this is verifiable and our elected officials have been doing this for years (the Kennedy family in particular). The tax and spend political class of our great state of California have really got themselves in a quagmire and they want more from us? Why should hardworking, tax-paying, equity-owning, good citizens subsidize irresponsible, reckless, arrogant, lying and untrustworthy politicians?

Forgive me for sounding so self-righteous but I am drawing a line, just like the majority of tax-paying Californian residents did this past special election where we voted down Props 1A-1E. Totally bogus notions that the mess we are in can be alleviated by more taxes from the very people who have mismanaged what we have already trusted them with.

WOODLAND JUSTICE ARRESTED FOR PLAYING CRAPS

Woodland, Sept. 15.—R. W. Harrison, Justice of the Peace here, Dan Barton, a storekeeper of Dunnigan, and "John Doe," said to be a Greek restaurant man, yesterday were served with warrants charging them with shooting craps in violation of the anti-gambling section of the Penal Code.

Warrants have also been issued and will be served today, according to City Recorder Schleur,on Joe Solomon, auto salesman; Howard Duncan, cattleman; Guy Eastburne, taxicab driver, and J. G. Carmack, dentist, charging them with being involved in the same alleged offense.

All seven defendants are charged by Nightwatchman Hardy Goodin with participating in a crap game, staged in the Hotel Burns at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The warrant on Justice of the Peace Harrison was served by City Marshal Perry Lawson... He was instructed to appear in Court this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Judge Harrison is the Justice who sentenced Mrs. A. Da Prato last Wednesday to a fine of $500 for selling wine to a detective, even though the woman does not speak or read the English language.

To the reporter of a daily paper of Sacramento he said he did not know that he was playing craps, but that he was simply shaking dice with the "boys."

Ignorance of the law, etc.

DA PRATO AND WIFE FOUND GUILTY AND FINED $750

Woodland, Sept. 13.—At the conclusion of a trial before Justice of the Peace R. W. Harrison this morning Clementia Da Prato and his wife Asunta were found guilty of having in their possession and distributing booze in Washington about ten days ago. It will be remembered that Hiram Smith, posing as a man of universal thirst, and Constable Isaac Clover, in the role of a cattle buyer and expert stockman, raided the place and found wine, gin and jackass. Much of it they bought and brought to Woodland as evidence.

Da Prato, like old brother Adam, hid behind the skirts of his wife and charged her with any illicit use or distribution of wine that may have been going on. When questioned why he went to the cellar after wine, he frankly stated that his wife sent him, and that the wine that was sold was so sold by her and not him. In fact it was she and not him.

Smith bought jackass for his morning's mornin', but Mrs. Da Prato said it was given to her and that she wanted to make Smith a present of it but that he forced money upon her. Smith assured District Attorney C. C. McDonald that it was one of his failings never to insist upon any person taking money from him, that like the rest of the world he belonged to the "Giveme Club."

Woodland, Sept. 14.—Clementino Da Prato, a Sacramento cook, was fined $250 and his wife $500 with a suspended jail sentence of six months additional by Justice R. W. Harrison in the Justice Court here to-day for violation of the local dry ordinance.

The Court held that the evidence indicated that the wife was more responsible for the bootlegging operations of the family at Washington than the husband, and hence gave her the heavier sentence.

Judge E. E. Gaddis, attorney for the defendants, gave notice of an immediate appeal to the Superior Court. Judge Gaddis said the local enforcement ordinance is clearly in conflict with the 18th amendment to the Federal Constitution and hence inoperative.

Yesterday the six Da Prato children were returned to their parents and their home after testimony had been given by several local responsible people crediting Mrs. Da Prato with being a good woman and a good mother.

Those testifying to the good character of Mrs. Da Prato were E. I. Hanson and wife, Mrs. Mary Hanson, next door neighbors. Supervisor W. J. Leinberger and E. Moss for several years a next door neighbor.

Mrs. Da Prato speaks very little English and probably never heard of the Volstead law. Her husband also speaks but little English and does not read newspapers printed in English.

FARM WANTED

Wanted to hear from owner of a farm or good land for sale reasonable. L. Jones, Box 551, Olney, Ill.

TIM TONELLI HAS PITIFUL TALE HE TELLS IN HIS OWN WAY

Arrested for bootlegging on September 6th, Tim Tonelli, proprietor of the Washington Hotel, tells a pitiful tale that, to him, is unbearable in this land of liberty.

Some time ago Tim was arrested and fined $1,000 by a Woodland judge for having jackass in his premises.

When arrested again on September 6th no liquors of any kind were found in his place, but he is held to answer nevertheless under bonds of $1,000.

Yesterday he said: "If I have something I am arrest' and fine' and then I go ahead and don sell no more, Then they come again and I am arrest' too, when I haven't something. If I have something I am arrest', if I have not something I am arrest'. What the hell! I no can see what for. Pret' soon I go 'way perhaps I be arrest' too. What for I have no wine. I get thin and the Dist' Attorney he get fat. This one hell of country."

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 15, NAMED FOR BENEFIT DANCE

Catholic residents of Washington, West Sacramento and Bryte are making arrangements for a dance and entertainment to be given on Saturday evening, October fifteenth, at the town hall in Washington for the benefit of the Catholic Church.

They have the co-operation of nearly all their neighbors who have kindly volunteered to help along the good cause.

At a meeting held September 6th there were many present and it was promised then that the entertainment would be as good as any that had ever been given for this purpose.

Intermixed between the dances there will be several numbers, such as special dances, songs, recitations, or comic entertainment.

Most prominent in getting up the affair are Antone Marty, Miss Mary Anater, Miss Mary Traversi, Miss Neville Korrel, Martin Cream, J. Taylor, E. Moss and W. Downs.

As a special feature of the entertainment several valuable door prizes have been offered for distribution, at which every one entering the hall will have a chance.

Miss Margaret Gorman of Washington, D. C., has been acclaimed the most beautiful girl in the United States by more than two thousand persons assembled on the pier, and as a consequence she won the five thousand dollar trophy.

Isn't it funny how those French people get up in the world.

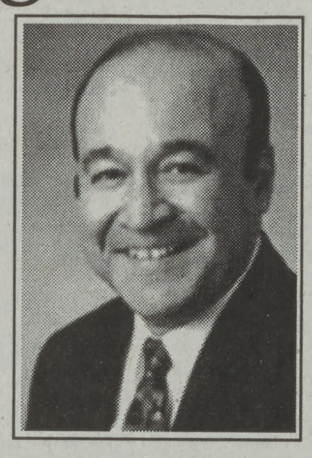
Weathering the budget storm in Yolo's school districts

Jorge O. Ayala, Ed.D.
Yolo County Superintendent of Schools



Dr. Jorge O. Ayala
Superintendent of Schools
Yolo County

As we hear the news all around us regarding the local, state, national, and international economy, the solutions to resolve the dilemma continue to be developed. With the symptoms of lack of trust, confidence, and integrity this faltering economy entails, we somehow remain steadfast that this too shall pass.

It is our human spirit that holds the compass for the path to recovery. What do I mean by the human spirit as a compass? Well, primarily it means the semblance of various ideas melding into new operational principles. It means a gestalt with compassion for the populace as a primary focus. It means the diversity of logic and emotion garnered into motivationally loaded unified processes that frame the path of measureable and accountable behavior and results. In essence, it means that we must find flexible, agile, yet cohesive means to continue to work together for the long haul with renewed trust and confidence as an integrated system. Education has such an opportunity as a result of the current reductions to the state education budget.

The Legislature and Governor have imposed $11.6 billion in statewide education budget reductions since September 2008, resulting in significant reduction of essential programs and services to students that are integral to their educational success. In an effort to provide school districts with an opportunity to mitigate the impact of revenue limit and categorical program reductions, the legislature has provided two types of flexibility. School districts may sweep the 2007-08 unencumbered ending balances for most state categorical programs. In addition to sweeps, the legislature removed the restrictions on forty-two categorical programs retroactively to July 1, 2008, allowing the funds to be transferred from the previous categorical program to any other educational purpose. The funds from the forty-two previous categorical programs have been designated as unrestricted revenue by the budget act SBX3 4.

As a condition of apportionment or receipt of the flexible funds, school districts are required to hold a public hearing to provide an opportunity for public testimony and to allow the Board to discuss the flexibility provisions, how to prioritize the use of the limited resources, and the resulting effect on specific programs offered by the school district. The transfer of funds will be used to ensure that the school district goals for student learning will be the priority of the use of this flexibility. As a result of the nearly twenty percent reduction to the flexible funding when compared to the previous categorical funding and a general fund revenue limit deficit approaching eighteen percent, school districts can not continue to operate every program. Choices must be made that will benefit the greater educational program and support student achievement with new and integrated strategies. This is an opportunity for school administrators, teachers, parents and students to focus the limited funds they will receive in the 2009-10 budget year to support the educational initiatives that will best provide opportunities for student success. The educational need and focus will vary from district to district; one district may use its resources to keep core classes at reasonable teacher student ratios, another district may use its resources for music programs, and yet another district may use its resources for infrastructure. Each district will have unique circumstances, priorities, and solutions.

For the educational community and the school districts in Yolo County there are more questions abounding than answers. It is human nature to doubt; it is also human nature to hope. It will require a healthy balance of both to move us to collaborative, constructive, and decisive solutions. Districts will look at all possibilities to keep staff employed and to retain the quality of services valued by the community. It is not easy but together we can make it happen.

A budget hearing for Washington Unified School District was held on June 15.

Letters to the Editor

Should have done better

I hope it was just an oversight because I find it difficult to believe a working newspaper would print photos on the front page and not identify the subjects.

Last week's News-Ledger did a good thing, i.e., printing the photos of eight young RCHS graduates who achieved top academic honors. However, not one of these high achievers was identified, only the school principal and all we could see of her was her back.

Come on guys, you can do better than that. Shoulda' had the principal's face; shoulda' had the names of all awardees; shoulda' had the reason for the award. Wha' hoppin'?

These kids worked hard. They needed to be recognized. Maybe next week? After graduation? Hope so.

PAT DITLEVSEN
West Sacramento

(Editor's note: the News-Ledger has requested the names of the Class of 2009 valedictorians from RCHS.)

No more new taxes

What we need in our state legislature is not more placating and self-deprecating of ourselves but elected officials with real honest to goodness integrity – good luck!

The suggestions forwarded in last week's letter by Mr. Lowell concerning our current budget crisis and how to fix our problems was naïve. As a Fox news anchor said recently, "we have done our part and paid our taxes so what gives?"

Challenge legality of Proposition 13 in court? Been there done that in 1992. The US Supreme Court Nordlinger v Hahn declared

COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS

BY DNA SMITH

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"My Dinner with André" — It is hard to believe that it's been nearly 30 years since the theatrical release of this film, but it is finally out on DVD. Directed by Louis Malle and starring Wallace Shawn and André Gregory, "My Dinner with André" was THE art-house darling of 1981, and one hopes this film about two friends having a two-hour philosophical discussion over dinner still holds up. Even then, it was one of those movies you needed to be in the mood for, so I've got my fingers crossed.

"John Lennon & The Plastic Ono Band Live In Toronto '69" — On the night before The Beatles were to release "Abbey Road," legendary documentarian D.A. Pennebaker ("Don't Look Back," "The War Room," "Montery Pop") captured on film, the only live performance of John Lennon & The Plastic Ono Band. It is one of Lennon's finest performances, the incredible energy he brought to the music was no doubt a result of the tension surrounding the impending break-up of The Beatles. Although I haven't seen this DVD, I do still own the vinyl LP of the concert, and I'm hoping there's less Yoko on the DVD than there was on the record.

"At the Death House Door" — This one of those powerful documentaries that made the film-festival circuit, but never really got a proper theatrical release. Directed by Peter Gilbert and Steve James (the guys who did the amazing "Hoop Dreams"), this documentary centers on Rev. Carolle Pickett, the death-row chaplain for the Huntsville, Texas, state prison. After serving as chaplain for 13 years and witnessing 95 executions, Pickett becomes an advocate against the death penalty following his investigation into the conviction (and subsequent execution) of Carlos De Luna, a man Pickett believes was innocent and wrongly prosecuted.

The Food of a Younger Land
by Mark Kurlansky
(Riverhead Books, $27.95)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

Award-winning food writer Mark Kurlansky discovered the files of "America Eats" in the Library of Congress by accident. The research had been abandoned by members of the Federal Writers Project, one of President Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal programs that provided work to thousands of unemployed writers during the Great Depression.

The project was conceived in 1939 by FWP administrator Katherine Kellock. She sent writers and researchers to every region of the country to document the richly varied food and eating traditions of prewar America. Even though a stack of copy nearly 2 feet high was generated, both the FWP and the project were disbanded following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

The research Kurlansky found in the national archives is important because it provides a snapshot of 1940 America, a time, as the author explains, before the national highway system, chain restaurants and frozen food. The nation's food supply was seasonal, regional and traditional, which helped form and reflect the distinct character, attitudes and customs of those who ate it.

For example, there were possum-eating clubs in the South, Puget Sound salmon feasts in the Pacific Northwest, South Carolina barbecues and even traditional ash cakes in Arkansas, which are, as might be suspected, baked in the coals of a fireplace. In short, this magnificent collection reveals all of the curiosities, commonalities and communities of American food in prewar America.

The changes brought about by the war were profound. Kurlansky points out that in 1940, Mexican cooking in America was found only in the Southwest among the Chicanos who knew how to grind the corn.

To find a description of a 1930s Manhattan Automat, or find out what Texas chuck wagon cooking was like, or find a recipe for Indiana Persimmon pudding, there is no better source than this excellent book.

Stuffed Snow Peas Are Crowd Pleasing Appetizer

Summer brings with it a deluge of events from weddings and baby showers to backyard barbeques. Entertaining in the summer often means finding ways to keep cool while feeding a crowd. The best way to feed a large number of people is to find recipes with simple preparation and low-cost ingredients. I've discovered that inexpensive appetizers are a wonderful way to set the tone for a party — and feed a crowd. I've provided a fabulous recipe for "Crab" Stuffed Snow Pea Appetizers and some tips for planning and preparing a crowd-pleasing menu:

1. Plan your menu using inexpensive ingredients as the "foundation" of your meal plan. For example, pasta, potatoes, rice, seasonal vegetables and good-quality canned goods like beans and tomatoes make a great base for a variety of dishes from appetizers, salads and soups to main course meals.

2. Make a shopping list and plan your trips based on the items you can prep ahead of time, and the items that have to be done the day of the party. Purchase large, food-safe plastic storage bags to make storing huge quantities of food easier and to conserve room in your refrigerator. Incorporate coupons and sale items into your menu and shopping plan. Don't try to shop and cook on the same day.

3. It's often easier to make a recipe that feeds 6 to 8 people multiple times than it is to try to multiply recipe ingredients to feed 12, 20 or 50. This method also allows you to use smaller pans or bowls making it easier to transport and to store the finished dishes.

4. Substituting inexpensive ingredients for more expensive ones, or using smaller amounts of more expensive ingredients helps to stretch your food budget. For example, instead of using more expensive smoked salmon, good quality canned salmon can be mixed with cream cheese and spices to make a low-cost and delicious dip or spread that can be served on toasted bagels for brunch or as an appetizer for dinner with crudités or crackers.

5. Decide the order of preparation in advance and enlist help with preparing the menu as much as possible. Don't be shy about asking family and friends to bring drinks, side dishes or paper goods.

6. When making large amounts of food, cleanliness and holding the dishes at the correct temperature is very important. Invest in an instant-read thermometer and follow the temperature guide to determine if your dishes are at a safe temperature before serving. Crock pots, ice chests and placing dishes or pans in bowls of ice help maintain food-safe temperatures.

Most of all, remember that the purpose of the occasion is to celebrate with the people that you love, so relax and enjoy yourself!

"CRAB" STUFFED SNOW PEAS

This delicious, crowd-pleasing appetizer uses inexpensive imitation crab meat and fresh snow peas. You can cut costs even more by eliminating the "crab" meat and doubling the amount of eggs, mayonnaise, pickle relish, celery and spices the recipe calls for. The "stuffing" mixture can be prepared a day in advance and the appetizer can be assembled the day of the party.

- 1 pound fresh snow peas
- 2 pounds imitation crab meat
- 4 hard-cooked Eggland's Best eggs, finely chopped
- 2 stalks celery, finely chopped
- 1/2 cup light mayonnaise
- 3 tablespoons finely chopped onions
- 4 teaspoons pickle relish
- 1/2 teaspoon prepared horseradish
- 3 dashes of hot sauce
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon pepper

To make the stuffing mixture:

Dice or shred the crab meat. In a small bowl, combine the crab meat, eggs, celery, mayonnaise, onions, pickle relish, horseradish, hot sauce and salt and pepper. Mix well, cover and chill the stuffing mixture for at least one hour or overnight. Stir before using the mixture to stuff the snow peas.

To prepare the snow peas:

Wash and clean snow peas. Split the snow peas on the top side, removing and discarding any strings and leaving the bottom intact to form a little "boat" to hold the stuffing. Blanch the snow peas in lightly salted boiling water for 30 seconds. Carefully remove the snow peas from the water and immediately submerge them into a bowl of cold water for a minute to stop the cooking and retain the color. Remove the snow peas from the water. Set the snow peas aside to drain.

Stuff the cooled snow peas generously with the crab-meat filling (about 1 heaping teaspoonful for each snow pea). Chill the appetizer in the refrigerator until ready to serve. Makes about 48 stuffed snow peas.

Have you wondered what it's like on top of the curved roof of the new CalSTRS building near the Tower Bridge in West Sacramento?

Some of the city's firefighters attended a training "walk-through" of the building and its firefighting systems last week. Opening this year, the building is now the highest office tower in the city.

The view in the right-hand picture is to the north, into the "Washington" area.

The building's shape is inspired by the shape of a sail.
